A SPECIAL TIME FOR GIVING THANKS AND SINGING JOY TO THE WORLD

By Sandra Faye

My life has been blessed by meeting my two life teachers in the early 70's. One of course is my Kriya brother, Roy Eugene Davis, a direct disciple of Paramahansa Yogananda. If you are not yet familiar with this masterful teacher, write CSA in Lakemont, GA. and request information which will be sent to you freely. To read about Yogananda, acquire his book, "Autobiography of a Yogi" from any bookstore.

The other teacher who has blessed my life is Rev. LeRoy Zemke, Senior Pastor of the Temple of the Living God of St. Petersburg, FL. My contact with this teacher took place after having received a hand written note from MS. Jean Dixon, a very well known Christian psychic who prophesied to me that I would meet my teacher that would help me understand the supernatural experiences taking place in my life. This event took place two weeks following my receipt of her card which said exactly, I would meet the teacher in two weeks.

Both Roy Eugene Davis and Rev. LeRoy Zemke have been feeding my soul for 40 years now and I thank God for them constantly. Both teachers have assisted me in my ongoing discovery of my own divine nature which is always unfolding. It's not a static condition or state. In our modern world we hear so many speak about experiencing certain patterns over and over. They explain that they are somewhat bored and are looking for something new. Often the interpretation of these circumstances, issues or as they say, "boring" events are a signal to go deeper within. It's our soul's way of reminding us that our ego's attachments, wishes and desires need to be given over to the Divine Source. It is possible that at some level, our most sacred nature is attempting a breakthrough!

When we are truly thankful for our life experiences it serves to act as a "connector" to the universal flow. When we complain, we disconnect so to speak. Complaining, fault finding, arguing may be briefly emotionally fulfilling or intellectually stimulating, but when we get trapped in these thoughts we lose our way. We fall from God's grace and feel separated from the deep, internal relationship we have to life that is everywhere around us.

"Grace: Effortless Unfoldment of the Highest Good."

By doing our best to learn, do and grow, we actualize our knowledge and abilities and become receptive to the actions of grace. Grace is the constantly expressing, supportive and enlivening evolutionary influence that contributes to our spontaneous growth and assists us to fulfillment. Grace is the knowing...it expresses around us in the field or domain of God's Consciousness to unfold supportive circumstances, relationships and events.
